We want what we don't get

I would like to answer Ted Mitchell's question "Why do our citizens loathe democracy?" on Jan. 27. We loathe democracy because our government is a Constitutional Republic and not a democracy. Perhaps Mr. Mitchell needs to reread the constitution. A democracy results in nothing more than mob rule where the will of the many is imposed upon the minority.

This is exactly what happens with the unions of today. A worker always has the option of leaving a job where he is not treated fairly. In a free society employers would vie for the best workers by offering the best wages and benefits, and yes Mr. Mitchell, the whole point of running a business is to make money, since when has that become a crime? Who would want to put the time, money and effort into running a business and taking all the risks doing so if there were no profit involved?

I'm tired of people hiding behind the "Democracy line" let's call it what it is Socialism!
