

COVENTRY TEACHER RECOGNIZED AGAIN

Julie Lima Boyle, a Coventry High School teacher, was recognized by the Board of Regents for Elementary and Secondary Education on Thursday night as the 2012 Rhode Island Teacher of the Year. The award was created to recognize the state's best teachers, according to RIDE, and the department presented Boyle with it in November 2011. Here, she stands with her husband, Sean Boyle, and Colleen A. Callahan, the secretary for the Board of Regents.
