COVENTRY — It's one of the largest high schools in the state, and now Coventry High has a Hall of Fame for its alumni to add to its list of superlatives.

This year, the Coventry Alumni Association will induct its first class to the Coventry Alumni Association Hall of Fame at a dinner in late May.

Four inductees will be honored on May 31 at Nino's on Lake Tiogue. Mr. James DiPrete, Mrs. Andrea Hopkins, and Mr. Robert Peltier will be honored, while a posthumous induction will occur for Mrs. Anne Proffitt Dupre.

Tickets for the event are available for $25 and can be purchased from Ernie DiMicco by calling (401) 261-6902 or e-mailing dimiccoed@gmail.com.

The Coventry Alumni Association works in conjunction with the Coventry Teachers' Alliance to award thousands in scholarships to graduating seniors every year, and now four distinguished alumni will be leading the way through their enshrinement in the Hall of Fame for generations of future Coventry graduates to aspire to more than simply obtaining their diploma in June of their senior year.

The school, located at 40 Reservoir Road in Coventry, has been one of the largest in Rhode Island throughout its tenure, and from its deep alumni pool there will surely be more names added to the four honored this year in years to come.

For friends and family of this year's crop of inductees, though, it is certainly a thrill to see their names listed as Hall of Famers.

In the weeks ahead, the Times will feature a brief biography of each of the four, and also inform our readers of how the Hall of Fame went from an idea to a reality.
