

COVENTRY

Pink Out Day at Tiogue

Photos by Kendra Leigh Miller

Above: Celebrating 'Pink Out' Day at Tiogue Elementary school are Cameron Murphy and Travis Howman.

Left: Rhianna Petris, Sophia Sigman and Kyleigh Matola are dressed up to mark Pink Out Day.

Below: Tiogue Elementary School Principal Louise Seitsinger and students celebrate Pink Out Day.

Students dress up for breast cancer awareness

KENDRA LEIGH MILLER

kmiller@ricentral.com

COVENTRY — It was pink out day Friday at Tiogue Elementary School for breast cancer awareness month.

"If you paid $1 you could wear pink," Seitsinger said. "I'm so proud of these kids. They always take part in doing things to make the community a better place."

"These kids are the bet kids and they always do things to step up and help others," said Tiogue teacher Tara D'Aleno. "They look so great and it's been so much fun to see them all with their pink on. I love the 'tough guys wear pink' shirts. Awesome."

According to School Principal Louise Seitsinger, the fundraiser, which brought in over $200, is part of the Feinstein Schools Project and all proceeds go to the Susan B. Comer Foundation."